Advice and Guidance

If you have been accepted into the AQA English Language pathway, this means that you've succeeded in reaching or exceeding your targets in practice examinations and controlled assessments. You will be spending 2 periods a week in a class that is 100% focussed on preparation for the May examination, which makes up 60% of your final grade.

There's no room for complacency, but you should be pleased with what you've achieved so far. You're on track.

Revision Sessions

The Department of English supports our GCSE students in many ways. There are many regularly scheduled revision sessions and master-class sessions for students of English. These occur before and after school, on Saturday mornings and in the Easter break. The best way to keep informed about these is via your class teacher's section of our department website edutronic.net

Website Links

From Monday 24 February, the department's website will be launching our GCSE Examination Microsite, which we will keep up to date with everything you need to know and do to be prepared for your English examinations. This will be prominently visible from the hub at edutronic.net

Other forms of preparation

It is a significant advantage for students to begin to read broadsheet newspapers on a regular basis in the months leading up to their GCSE English Language examination. A subscription to the Guardian or a similar broadsheet newspaper will be an invaluable investment in your broader preparation for examinations over the next few months.
